* A stipend is a payment made to an individual under a fellowship or grant to provide for the individual’s living expenses. A stipend is not considered compensation for services. Students must be academically associated with the activities of the sponsored project to receive a stipend. Stipend recipients may work on the activities associated with the award, in pursuit of their academic goals, but are not allowed to perform compensable services, present or future, for the project in exchange for the stipend. Eligibility for a stipend must be determined based on the terms and conditions of the agreement.
